The Society, which was founded at an Inaugural Meeting held at the rooms of The National Book League on 30th March, 1957, is the first of its kind to be established in this country and (so far as can be ascertained) the only one of its kind in the world.

Membership is open to indexers (whether of books and periodicals or otherwise), librarians, cataloguers, archivists and other persons or bodies who are interested in promoting its objects.

Its objects are:

1. To improve the standard of indexing and secure some measure of uniformity in its technique.

2. To maintain a panel of Indexers in all fields from which authors, editors, publishers and others may be furnished with suitable names on application.

3. To act as an advisory body on the qualifications and remunerations of Indexers to which authors, editors, publishers and others may apply for guidance.

4. To publish or communicate from time to time books, papers and notes on the subject of indexing.

5. To raise the status of Indexers and to safeguard their interests.

It also aims at providing a course of training—believed to be the only one at present available in the country—for its less experienced members and at awarding fellowships to such of its members as qualify for them.

Whilst the Society should be regarded rather as a learned society than as an employment agency, it does in fact provide a useful liaison between authors and publishers on the one hand and indexers on the other.

Copies of the Society's Journal, The Indexer, will be sent free to members.

There are two classes of members:

(a) Individual.

(b) Institutional (or Corporate).

The annual subscription for individual and non-profit making institutional members is two guineas, entitling the non-profit making institutional member to have one representative at the Society's meetings.

For firms or companies the minimum annual subscription is four guineas, which entitles them to have two representatives at meetings and to receive two copies of each issue of The Indexer.

Subscriptions are payable on or before 1st April in each year. Members joining after 31st December are only liable to pay half the normal rate of subscriptions for the remainder of the financial year.
